

Choosing the right ecommerce platform for your business

Setting up and running an online retailing business can be complex, and specific needs vary from business to business. eCommerce is not cheaper than traditional bricks'n'mortar retail; the costs are merely spread across different things. Setup costs for today's most widely used ecommerce platforms can range from $15,000 to $300,000+ with ongoing annual costs ranging from $30,000 to $200,000+ depending on the platform, business turnover and third-party plugins.

Before committing to a new ecommerce platform, it pays to clearly define what you need, both for the immediate and foreseeable future. We believe the less systems you need to rely on, the less headaches you will encounter. The more flexible, feature-rich and customisable a platform is, the more scalability it enables, and the more growth it will support.

Replatforming is a major exercise, typically very time consuming, stressful and disruptive. Selecting the right commerce solution today can save time, improve efficiency, support faster expansion and future-proof your business.

If you contemplate the features and functions your business will need for the foreseeable future, we believe you will also appreciate the superior benefits ZELLIS Connect offers.
